

Provision of Medical Treatment to UCR SOM Students by UCR SOM Faculty

UCR SOM faculty members may not academically evaluate students for whom they provide or have provided medical care for sensitive health issues (e.g., mental health, sexually transmitted diseases or any health issue the student defines as sensitive). Prior to providing any medical care to a UCR SOM student, a faculty member must explain this policy and ask the medical student to sign this form.

This policy will be explained to UCR SOM students during orientation at matriculation and again at the beginning of the 3rd year of medical training during Clinical Fundamentals. When ranking clerkship sites, students may not include sites where their physician treating him/her for a sensitive health issue is located. In the unlikely event that the student is assigned to such a site, the faculty member must recuse himself or herself from any evaluative or grading role.

This document will be kept by the student’s treating health care provider.
